Environmental Issues Said On Hold Until After the Election

WASHINGTON (AP) — From acid rain and toxic waste to coal heating and wilderness preserves, environmental issues are on hold, and environmentalists say it's no accident.

Environmentalists are opposing President Reagan's reelection, contending that his first term has been a disaster in dealing with existing environmental problems and preparing for the problems of the future. They say the predominant environmental issue is Reagan himself.

Reagan has been giving the issue to his voters in his campaign literature "not to be lulled into a false sense of security."

Life-Support
Abortion Slogan - 'Every Child a Wanted Child'

Sounds compassionate, doesn't it? But in fact, this statement indicates that the value of a child is dependent on the "wants" of others. It condones abortion as if it is an expression of love or as if it's done for the "own good." The wants of the unborn child - to an unwanted pregnancy can produce a wanted child, wanted either by the natural parents or by thousands of prospective adoptive parents. Give Life a Chance.
